

A personal invitation from Kelly,

Time To Teach

In every educator's life, there are those watershed moments where things you always thought to be true are proven out to be false. We had always used an assertive discipline model and kids behaved out of fear of getting in trouble. Inevitably the behavior would happen again and the students never learned what we wanted them to, which was right vs. wrong. Administrators and teachers would grow frustrated and couldn't find enough time to teach their curriculum because of the amount of wasted time spent on discipline. However, we always thought that was 'just the way it is each year.' We couldn't have been more wrong!!

Finding Time To Teach and the adopting the philosophy in our literature has changed my life as a school administrator as well as the lives of our staff. Our teachers, but more importantly our kids, are more successful because of Time To Teach! Our discipline referrals have been cut in half, our API Scores jumped 35 points, reports of bullying have dropped significantly and our school climate is tremendously improved! Teachers who were once burned out are now energized and happy. Time To Teach is directly responsible!

I hope you will take the time to explore this website, listen to the testimonials from others who speak about how Time To Teach has helped them handle even the toughest problems, and see the relevance to every teacher in America who has ever had a challenging student.

I believe so strongly in Time To Teach that I became a presenter for The Center For Teacher Effectiveness so I could share with others the most successful classroom management program I have ever seen! So please don't hesitate to call or email me for more information so you too can bring these researched based, time tested in school districts across the United States, common sense strategies to your school and classroom!

Yours in Education,
Kelly
